ABSTRACT

Summary information on undergraduate applications for admission to Virginia's state-supported institutions of higher education is presented. The tables contained in this publication report figures by residence and type of institution for the following categories: total applications receiving decision; applications accepted; percent of applications rejected; applicants accepted and enrolled; and percent of applicants accepted who enrolled. One-year changes indicate that the volume of applications for first-time freshman admission increased seven percent, although the total number of in-state first-time freshman applications accepted dropped by one percent. Transfer student applications have also increased significantly, especially into the community college system. (LBH)

UNDERGRADUATE ADMISSIONS APPLICATIONS, FALL 1974

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia presents basic summary information on undergraduate applications for Fall 1974 admission to Virginia's state-supported institutions of higher education. The tables contained in this publication report figures by residence and type of institution for the following categories: total applications receiving decision, applications accepted, percent of applications accepted, applicants accepted and enrolled, and percent of applicants accepted who enrolled. Following is a summary table of admissions for the past five years.

APPLICATIONS FOR UNDERGRADUATE ADMISSION

Year	Two-Year Colleges		Four-Year Col. & Univ.		All Institutions
	First-Time Freshman	Transfer	First-Time Freshman	Transfer	First-Time Freshman	Transfer
Fall 1970	19,444	2,671	38,902	8,622	58,346	11,293
Fall 1971	20,450	5,918	42,110	10,487	62,560	16,405
Fall 1972	23,313	4,892	43,875	12,210	67,188	17,102
Fall 1973	30,612	9,038	42,922	14,294	73,534	23,332
Fall 1974	32,510	10,256	46,409	13,856	78,919	24,112

During the five year period of 1970-1974, the volume of applications for first-time freshman admission to Virginia's state-supported colleges and universities increased 35 percent. Applications for first-time freshman admission at the twenty-three community colleges in the Community College System have increased 287 percent during this period. The four-year state-supported institutions had 19 percent more freshman applications in Fall 1974 than in 1970.

One-year changes indicate that the volume of applications for first-time freshman admission to all Virginia state-supported institutions increased 7 percent in the last year. The four-year state-supported institutions received 8 percent more freshman applications in Fall 1974 than in 1973 while applications to the Community Colleges increased 6 percent.

The total number of in-state first-time freshman applications accepted in 1974 dropped by 1 percent from 1973, but the percent of applicants who actually enrolled increased by 3 percent. In the same period, the percentage of out-of-state students accepted for enrollment dropped 3 percent. However, of these out-of-state students accepted, the percentage of those who enrolled increased 3 percent. These figures result in a 1 percent decrease in total applications accepted and a 3 percent increase in the number of applicants enrolled.

In 1973 and 1974, 79 percent of all in-state first-time freshman applications to four-year colleges and universities were accepted for enrollment which compares to previous years in which no more than 76 percent were accepted. Seven of the fifteen senior institutions accepted almost 9 out of 10 applications for in-state first-time admission. Three of these institutions accepted nearly 100 percent. In 1974 only one institution accepted more than 90 percent of out-of-state applications as compared to 1973, when three senior institutions accepted more than 90 percent of the applications submitted by out-of-state first-time freshman students.

Transfer student applications have also increased significantly during the last five years. A total of 24,112 transfer applications were received by all state-supported colleges and universities for the Fall of 1974, representing an increase of 131 percent since 1970. Of this total 19,346, or 80 percent, were applications from in-state students. The remaining 4,766 transfer applications were received from out-of-state students. Applications for transfer included 11,601 for transfer at the freshman level, 6,284 at the sophomore level, 5,693 at the junior level, and 534 at the senior level. There were 13,855 applications for transfer submitted to four-year institutions, a 2 percent decrease in such applications since 1973. The overall number of applicants who enrolled in four-year institutions decreased 3 percent in 1974. Fifty percent of the total transfer applications to four-year institutions were received by three universities: George Mason University, Virginia Commonwealth University, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Among the two-year colleges, Northern Virginia, John Tyler and Tidewater Community Colleges received 66 percent of all the transfer applications to two-year colleges.

The Community College System was the source of 3,578 of the 13,856 transfer applications received by four-year state-supported institutions. This is a 13 percent increase over the previous Fall. While 1,535 (or 42 percent) of the applications were for transfer at the junior level, 1,202 (or 33 percent) were at the sophomore level, and 841 (or 23 percent) were at the freshman level. Although the 13,856 transfer applications received by the senior institutions represented a decrease from Fall 1973, the number of transfer applications from the community colleges at each of the three student levels increased.

As in 1973, only 47 percent of the junior level transfer applications from community colleges to four-year state-supported institutions were from individuals who held an associate degree, perhaps indicating that many students do not feel the necessity of earning an associate degree before seeking a bachelor's degree. Ninety percent of the applications received by four-year institutions from individuals in community colleges were accepted in 1974. Of those from individuals holding the associate degree from a community college, 94 percent were accepted.
